HAZARD INSURANCE ON CONDOS

Types of Insurance

There are two types of insurance required for any Condominium, Planned Unit Development (PUD), or Co-op:

- · Homeowners Association (HOA) Policy
- Unit Owner Policy (HO-6)

Most condos, PUDs and co-ops will have a Homeowners Association Policy. However, if the Homeowners Association Policy does not satisfy the coverage requirements, you may also be required to obtain a Unit Owner Policy (HO-6) on your home.

What is a Homeowners Association (HOA) Policy?

A Homeowners Association Policy, or HOA Policy, is a hazard insurance policy that is maintained and paid for by your Homeowners Association. An HOA Policy typically covers the entire building or complex, and usually covers the common areas that you share with others in your building such as the roof, basement, elevator, boiler and walkways for liability and physical damage.

Why is an HOA Policy Required?

Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac, HUD, VA and other organizations that are investors or insurers of mortgage loans require that borrowers maintain adequate hazard insurance on homes that secure loans made under their programs, and define what constitutes adequate coverage.

What Coverage Does My HOA Policy Have to Have?

For loans secured by condos, PUDs and co-ops, investors typically require that borrowers provide an HOA Policy that has all of the following coverage:

- 1. Comprehensive general liability coverage for all structures and common areas within the development
- 2. Fidelity coverage to protect against acts committed by employees of the association
- 3. 100% coverage for the replacement cost value (RCV) of the structures and common areas
- 4. 100% coverage for the insurable replacement cost value of project improvements, including the individual condo units
- 5. "All-In" coverage
- 6. Coverage for "fixtures and equipment, betterments and improvements"

All-In coverage is insurance coverage that includes the perimeter walls, floors and ceilings of the individual units. Coverage for "fixtures and equipment, betterments and improvements" generally covers upgrades that have been made to the unit. "Bare Walls-In" coverage does not cover fixtures and installations within the individual units and will not meet investor requirements.

If an HOA Policy does not cover the interior of the units, or only includes "Bare Walls-In" coverage, the policy will not meet investor requirements and you will be required to have a Unit Owner Policy (HO-6).

Is a Unit Owner Policy (HO-6) Required?

You will be required to obtain a Unit Owner Policy (HO-6) if your HOA Policy does not have adequate coverage.

Unit Owner Policies cover a unit owner for direct damage to personal property, personal liability, and medical payments as outlined in the policy. They may also cover additional living expenses if you are the victim of fire, theft, or other loss listed in your policy. You can obtain a Unit Owner Policy (HO-6) from the insurance company or insurance agent of your choice.

Your Unit Owner Policy must meet the following requirements:
